Intention of This Call

SHRF's mandate is to encourage and fund health research with the goal of improved health of Saskatchewan citizens. We work to align research with the needs of the province and increase the investment in quality research that leads to better health care and healthier communities. The health of Saskatchewan communities is impacted by intersecting social, economic and historical factors. Supporting the health outcomes of Indigenous communities is integral to the success of this work.

In 2015, the federal government committed to implement the recommendations of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada \(TRC\) as a measure to redress the legacy of residential schools and advance Canadian society through reconciliation. The primary goals of the TRC are to support Indigenous Peoples and communities to heal, and to restore the relationship between Indigenous and non-Indigenous Peoples in Canada. The TRC recommendations are directed by 94 Calls to Action, including calls to guide governments, institutions, civil societies, and individual Canadians.

As a mechanism for change and action, SHRF recognizes the importance of the TRC and the role for reconciliation in improving health of all Saskatchewan citizens. SHRF supports change and action by offering Research Connections funding for efforts towards reconciliation for the health of Indigenous Peoples.

The Research Connections Program aims to increase the sharing of knowledge in ways that are easily accessible and useful for a range of audiences to inform decisions about health practices, programs and policies. Addressing the TRC Calls to Action, and in the spirit of the commission to reconcile Indigenous and non-Indigenous Peoples and perspectives, this funding supports knowledge sharing and collaboration activities for healthy and connected Saskatchewan communities.

This call is intended to provide funding that includes but is not limited to activities that: emphasize co-creation; share knowledge and stories; highlight Indigenous ways of knowing; offer recognition of cultural knowledge and ethical protocols; address attitudes, behaviors, institutions, and structures; create cross-cultural and generational interactions and exchanges; provide guidance on culturally responsive healthcare that responds to intersecting barriers to care, with the goal of improving the health of Indigenous peoples in Saskatchewan.

Focus Areas

Applications must address the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada: Calls to Action report in combination with any area of human health.

Completing Your Personal Profile

It is strongly encouraged that all Project Role individuals complete their SHRF RMS profiles, but it is not a requirement for this call. The information collected in the Personal Profile will better help SHRF understand the demographics of our applicants and guide us in ensuring that we are upholding our values and strategic direction.

To access your Personal Profile, you will need to be on the home page, where you will then see a person icon titled “Personal Profile”. Click on that icon and complete all required fields, then click “Save Draft” and “Save” to confirm the Personal Profile is complete. You can change your information at any time, just make sure to “Save Draft” or “Save” after changes are made.
